Helping New Graduates Find and Keep Good, Well-Paying Jobs

Too many students are unable to find a job after graduation. That's why we are creating opportunities for students to get meaningful work experience in their field that will help them find and keep a good job. Our plan is working—Canada's youth unemployment rate is at an historical low.

- Created almost 600,000 new jobs since we were elected in October 2015 with the lowest unemployment rate in almost 10 years.
- We are creating up to 60,000 student work placements over the next five years so that students can gain work experience and build valuable job skills that will help them get permanent work.
- Adding 1,200 green jobs for young people in science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM) in the natural resource sectors—10 times more opportunities in the Science Technology Internship Program
- Supporting the next generation of apprentices and tradespeople by providing $85.4 million over five years to unions and other skilled trade organizations to purchase modern equipment and materials and training.
